

The War College

In the romantic tradition of classic Salvationism The War College represents an innovative, bold work of incarnational grace in ‘the war with no discharge.’

At a time when seminarians are increasingly being educated and trained in the context of the local community of faith, God is birthing this same movement in The Salvation Army – with one added and startling dimension: the terrain is tough, the training is formidable and the teachers are courageous. Yes indeed, the ‘forts of darkness’ are being stormed. The end result is a vibrant “revolutionary movement of covenanted warriors exercising holy passion to win the world for Jesus.”

In a world increasingly bored by excess, ease and entertainment is it time you – or someone you know – responded to the call for heroism and enrolled in ‘the great salvation war?’

Lt. Colonels Richard and Janet Munn – Principals
The Salvation Army
International College for Officers and Center for Spiritual Life Development